Domestic, Family and Sexual Violence Statement

Purpose

This statement sets out how we support and protect customers who are impacted by Domestic, Family and Sexual Violence (DFSV), including non-domestic sexual violence where relevant. We aim to keep customers safe, connected and in control of how we communicate, while meeting our obligations under the Telecommunications (Domestic, Family and Sexual Violence Consumer Protections) Industry Standard 2025.

In this statement 'we', 'us' means 'Aussie Broadband' and 'you', 'your' means a 'customer'.

Our commitment

We recognise that people may experience domestic, family or sexual violence differently depending on their individual circumstances. We take an intersectional approach to support by considering factors such as disability, culture, language, gender identity, sexual orientation, age, financial dependence and access to technology. This helps us respond in a way that is respectful, inclusive and tailored, and reduces the risk of unintended harm or barriers when providing support to customers affected by domestic, family or sexual violence.

We have policies and procedures in place to protect the safety of customers who may be affected by domestic or family violence.

If you disclose that you are affected by domestic, family or sexual violence, we will treat you with dignity, respect and compassion, and always prioritise your safety. We will not require you to provide evidence or details of your experience in order to receive support, unless required by law or to protect your safety.

If your service has been restricted, suspended or disconnected, and you express or indicate concern about your safety, we can take steps to reverse this or offer you an equivalent service as a matter of urgency.

Our support

What we can do to support you

We will work with you and, depending on your circumstances, offer you options to help keep you safe and connected such as:

- Set up a new account or service for a fresh start
- Move services to a new location
- Remove services you no longer need
- Transfer or take ownership of a service
- Review and update contact information and who has access to your account
- Add additional security features such a passphrase to prevent unauthorised access or impersonation to access your account
- Recording and updating your preferred methods and times of contact

Financial hardship and Counselling

We understand domestic, family and sexual violence can impact your ability to pay for services. We will help you stay connected and manage payments under our Financial Hardship Policy and the Telecommunications (Financial Hardship) Standard 2024.

This may include finding an appropriate payment plan or extension, or other options based on your circumstances. We're here to support you and help keep you connected.

If you are experiencing financial abuse, a financial counsellor may be able to assist. You can find a financial counsellor using the government website at moneysmart.gov.au/managing-debt/financial-counselling.
